DESTRUCTION OF GAME FISH.

For many years ahe angler has grum bled over the destruction of game fish caused by the pollution of our streams. By a portion of the public this is considered the selfish complaining of sportsmen, whose recreations are there-by limited. The public is not aware by limited. The public is not aware that, with the game fish, our commerciel fisheries are being destroyed; that many millions of dollars are thereby lost commercially, and that the public is being deprived of thousands of tons of toothsome and nourishing food, so that the whole cost of living is measurably increased by this treatment of the streams.

Time was when the streams of New England and many of those of New York abounded with salmon. Time was when the sturgeon fishery and sturgeon oil of the Hudson river were important and valuable commercially, when Albany "beef" was in demand, and when sturgeon eggs formed an important article of export to Russia. Still later, in the boyhood of men yet young, the shad fisheries in the Connecticut and Housatonic and the Hudson were worth millions of dollars, and during the months of May and early June most delicious shad were to be had for a trifling price. Salmon, sturgeon, and shad in New England, and New York have almost disappeared. Of recent years, millions of shad fry have been distributed in the upper waters of the Hudson river, but the shad in that stream become less and less. In lieu of them stale fish from Southern—and unpolluted—waters alone are purchasable.—Forest and Stream. waters alone are purchasable.-Forest
